Sudan Conflicts (1955 - )

Agreements relate to several distinct dyads, and also the negotiated independence of South Sudan, and subsequent internal conflict in South Sudan. Sudan-South Sudan. The long-standing conflict between the north and the south of the country dates back to colonial times, where the British introduced a so-called 'Southern Policy', severely hampering population movements between these big regions. Immediately after gaining independence in 1956, southern movements started to fight for independence; this fight became professionalised in 1983 with the foundation of the soon internationally supported Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA). When the Islamic Front government introduced strict sharia laws in the south after it took over power in 1988 the war intensified. A decade later, the military situation reached a stalemate, enabling internationally facilitated peace negotiations to begin in 1997. After more fighting, a final negotiation push began in 2002, leading to the signing of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) in January 2005.

Sudan-South Sudan post referendum. South Sudan became independent in July 2011; since then, relations between the two countries are complicated and violent conflict led by the SPLM (North) in the Sudanese Nuba mountains region has since intensified.

Darfur. Other long-standing violent conflicts are in the east and the west of the country. In the east, the Beja Congress, established in 1957, is the spearhead of a currently 'peaceful' opposition movement. In the west, the violent conflict in Darfur intensified in the early 2000s and rapidly gained international attention, even resulting in genocide charges against leading figures of the Sudanese government. The situation on the ground is complex, with over a dozen organisations (most notably the Sudanese Liberation Movement and the Justice and Equality Movement) fighting the Sudanese government and allied groups like the Janjaweed – although all parties have switched sides on numerous occasions. Several mediation attempts have not been successful, due to the shaky commitment of the Sudanese central government and the distrust among the armed opposition.

South Sudan - internal

In December 2013, after president Salva Kiir accused opposition leader Riek Machar of attempting a coup, violent conflict broke out between government forces of the SPLM/A and anti-governmental groups. In addition, several other political militias as well as communal militias have joined the conflict. In 2015 the Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in South Sudan (ARCSS) was signed. Due to unsuccessful implementation the agreement was revitalized in 2018. In September 2019, Kiir and Machar agreed to establish a power-sharing government after struggles on forming a unity transitional government.

Security Guarantees

Page 1-2, 2. The Parties shall establish a Safe Demilitarised Border Zone (SDBZ, formerly 'Common Border Zone'), where the forces of the two Parties shall be redeployed 10 Kilometres outside from the north/south 1/1/1956 borderline, pending the resolution of the status of disputed border areas and the final demarcation of the border. This shall take effect by D-Day + 10 Days. The administrative common border line shall be used for those areas which are disputed. The Technical Boundary Demarcation Committee shall provide the required maps. The JPSM with other agreed associated security mechanisms shall be operationalised before 9 July 2011 until normal relationships prevail between the two sovereign States.

Page 2, 3. This agreement further provides for the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei (UNISFA), (Ethiopian troops) to provide force protection for the international border monitoring verification mission.

Page 2, 4. The Parties shall invite the AU and UN to provide external support for monitoring, verification in the SDBZ. The Parties and UNISFA shall constitute a joint committee to draft the mandate, renewable upon agreement of the Parties on a six-monthly basis, for the core mission of monitoring security in the SDBZ in order to avoid destabilizing situations through joint observation by unarmed observers from the Parties supported by UN observers.

- Assist in building mutual trust, confidence and an environment which encourages long-term stability and economic development through verification, investigations, monitoring, arbitrations, training, liaison, coordination, reporting, information exchange, and joint patrols;
- Create capacity for effective bilateral management mechanisms.
- Assist, facilitate and help to protect the demarcation teams within the SDBZ as requested by the JPSM.

Page 2-3, 5. A joint committee of the Parties and UNISFA shall jointly assess the mission headquarters, numbers of teams in each sector and their locations, and personnel that should be assigned to these tasks. This assessment will be submitted to the JPSM for approval. Following that, within an overall limit of 4,200 [footnote: Set by UNSC Resolution 1990] Ethiopian troops for UNISA and this border mission combined, the Force Commander of UNISFA after consultation with the Parties, will assess the operational requirements of force protection and air and logistical support for the border mission, and inform the JPSM accordingly.
