Central African Republic Conflicts (1996 -)

The Central African Republic conflict is one of a set of regionally connected conflicts addressed by the African Great Lakes process. After the country gained independence from France in 1960 it has been ruled by a sequence of autocratic leaders that principally gained power through coups. Since the mid-1990s several waves of internal conflict took place in the Central African Republic, primarily along tribal, and later-on increasingly sectarian, lines. In 1996 and 1997, French troops and soldiers from neighbouring countries intervened to end a mutiny in the capital, Bangui, by factions of the army. The fighting was predominantly along tribal lines, with southern tribes in revolt against the 'northern' government. A UN mission was installed in 1998 to secure the truce. After General Bozizé took control of the country after several coup attempts in 2003, a 'bush war' began led by armed opposition forces. From late 2006 onward, government troops with French military support severely weakened the rebels. Following this, a number of agreements were signed during 2007-2008, but not all factions have accepted them. In 2011, Bozizé was re-elected in supposedly fraudulent elections, which resulted in a new wave of uprisings. Séléka, an alliance of northern rebel groups, took over parts of the country and forced Bozizé to agree to a power-sharing deal. However, after this agreement broke down, Séléka took control of Bangui and Bozizé had to flee the country in 2013. Leader of Séléka, Michel Djotodia, took office and officially disbanded Séléka. However, continual violence between ex-Séléka groups and opposing militias, collectively known as 'anti-balaka', persisted and Djotodia was forced to resign less than a year later. Catherine Samba-Panza was installed as interim president until Faustin Archange Touadéra was elected in January 2016. In February 2019 an agreement was signed between the government and fourteen armed groups, including ex-Seleka groups, committed to disarmament. However, violence between ex-Seleka groups and anti-balaka continues.

7. Agenda

7.1. The topics of discussion will revolve around, but not be limited to, the following themes:

A) Political and socio-economic issues

1- Draw relevant conclusions from the Bangui Forum and concrete measures for their implementation, including those on the issues of inclusion, political participation, and fair representation of the different regions and communities in the executive body.

However, it should be noted that there are prefectures which, today, continue to enjoy a period of respite which is favorable to development. It is essential that the government invest in these regions to reward those who have preserved peace and social harmony.

This use of Government resources will further encourage these people to strive for peace. Thus, in addition to making the city of Bambari a model example for reinstating the State's authority, the Government of the Central African Republic proposes to its partners strong support for development efforts in prefectures.

2 - Reforms in administrative decentralization to allow for fair and balanced development of regions;

Pages 9-11, sections 4.4 to 5.4:

4.4 Moreover, the Government is aware that the success of the peace efforts will be all the more guaranteed if parties other than the armed groups are consulted. Thus, the African Initiative will take into account the relevant proposals of the parliamentary initiative for peace, will solicit the contributions of political actors, consult the civil society of the Central African Republic, and will listen to the victims.

4.5 In terms of direct exchanges, the African initiative will establish, in agreement with the Government, a quota for its representatives as well as those of the armed groups, in consultation with the facilitators and on the basis of transparent criteria.

5. Facilitation and Coordination

5.1. In line with the structure of the Roadmap for Peace and National Reconciliation in the Central African Republic, and with regard to the leadership of the Government in the implementation of this dialogue process, it will be facilitated and coordinated as follows:

A. Facilitation Panel

5.2 The Facilitation Panel will be provided by the International Support Group for

Central African Republic (GIS-CAR), composed of AU, ECCAS, ICGLR, Angola, Congo, Gabon, and Chad. This Panel will act collectively under the direction of the dedicated AU representative. The mission of the Panel is to:

- Convene meetings with stakeholders, moderate discussions, and chair plenary meetings between the Parties;
- Aid the quest for consensus and compromise between the Central African Parties and be permanently at their disposal to help overcome obstacles where appropriate:
 - To observe and ensure respect for the guiding principles contained in the Roadmap for Peace and National Reconciliation in the Central African Republic, as well as to ensure the commitment and behavior of the Parties;
 - To communicate the progress of the dialogue process, through the appropriate channels, to the institutions and civil society of the Central African Republic, the partners of the International Community, and the media.

5.3 The members of the Facilitation Panel will coordinate their actions with the National Coordination Focal Point.
